Postal Service Mulls New Reality

Agency could shutter 252 processing sites in effort to cut costs

Washington

The financially troubled Postal Service said Thursday it may close more than 250 mail processing facilities across the country and plans to reduce service standards for first-class mail in an effort to cut costs.

The steps are part of a broad effort to cut costs for the agency that lost $8.5 billion last year and is facing ever more red ink this year as the Internet siphons off the lucrative first-class mail and the stagnant economy holds down the growth of advertising mail. Over the last five years mail volume has declined by more than 43 billion items.

On the Chopping Block

The Postal Service will study 252 mail processing facilities across the country to see whether closing them will save money. In Maryland and Virginia, eight will be studied.

"We are radically realigning the way we process and deliver the mail," said Postmaster General Patrick Donahoe. "With the dramatic decline in mail volume and the resulting excess capacity, maintaining a vast national infrastructure is no longer realistic."

Postal officials said 252 mail processing facilities across the country will be reviewed over the next three months for possible closing. There are now 487 such offices. That's in addition to about 3,700 local post offices also being reviewed for closure.

The closings and service changes could save the post office as much as $3 billion annually and are part of an effort to reduce annual costs by $6.5 billion. Other savings are being sought through requests that Congress allow the post office to eliminate mail delivery on Sat-

The Postal Service said it plans to reduce current delivery standards for first-class mail. Such mail is now supposed to be delivered in one to three days depending on how far it has to go. That will be changed to two to three days, meaning mailers could no longer expect next-day delivery. (AP) urdays and change or eliminate an annual $5.5 billion payment the post office is required to make into a fund to cover future retiree medical benefits. Last year the Postal Service had revenue of $67 billion and expenses of $75 billion.

"Cutting costs is essential to saving the Postal Service and the 8 million private sector workers whose jobs rely on it," said Art Sackler, coordinator of the Coalition for a 21st Century Postal Service, an industry trade group. "The Coalition welcomes this important step and looks forward to the details." RANDOLPH E. SCHMID (AP)

Boehner to Debt Panel: Tax Hikes Not an Option

Washington

House Speaker John Boehner urged Congress' deficit "supercommittee" on Thursday to lay the groundwork for a broad overhaul of the U.S. tax code, rejecting Democrats' talk of tax increases but leaving open the possibility the government's take could rise as a result.

Tax increases "are not a viable option" for the committee, Boehner declared in a speech to the Washington Economic Club, ruling out many of the proposals that President Obama is expected to forward to the 12-member panel next week, including some that are part of his major jobs proposal.

The day's events underscored the extent to which the committee of 12 lawmakers is likely to be

Palestinians to Push for U.N. Recognition

U.S.: Nod would be 'counterproductive' to talks with Israel

Ramallah, West Bank

In a direct challenge to the United States, the Palestinians said Thursday they will ask the Security Council next week to accept them as a full member of the United Nations, even though Washington has promised to veto the measure.

The Palestinian assertion came as a senior U.S. diplomatic team was in the region trying to avert an embarrassing showdown and relaunch peace talks. By pushing forward, the Palestinians risk putting President Obama in the uneasy position of having to veto a measure supported by the vast majority of the international community.

Still, Foreign Minister Riad Malki said the Palestinians were still ready to listen to suggestions from U.S. envoys. His U.N. ambassador, Riyad Mansour, said a decision on whether to pursue Security Council recognition or seek a symbolic status in the General Assembly had not yet been made.

Palestinian President Mahmoud

Abbas is expected to give a speech Friday in Ramallah, and there was speculation he might address the issue then.

In Washington, White House spokesman Jay Carney emphasized that negotiation with Israel was the only viable path to Palestinian statehood.

"The Palestinians will not and cannot achieve statehood through a declaration at the United Nations. It is a distraction, and, in fact, it's counterproductive," he said.

Both the U.S. and Israel fear a U.N. vote could lead to violence and other consequences. The Pal-

Backstory

The Palestinians seek an independent state in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, with east Jerusalem as their capital. Israel captured the territories in the 1967 Mideast war. estinians say they are turning to the U.N. after years of frustration and believe a vote will improve their position in future talks.

Malki said Abbas would submit the Palestinian request for membership to U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon after addressing the 193-member General Assembly on Sept. 23.

While largely symbolic, the Palestinians are guaranteed a victory, as the chamber is dominated by nations sympathetic to their cause. The Palestinians say about 130 nations have pledged support. (AP)

Renegade Trader Caused $2B in Losses, UBS Says

London

One man armed with only a computer terminal humbled a venerable banking institution yet again. This time it was Swiss powerhouse UBS, which said Thursday that it had lost roughly $2 billion because of a renegade trader.

Thursday's arrest of equities trader Kweku Adoboli, 31, in London is one more headache for troubled international banks and fresh proof that they remain vulnerable to untracked trading.

"From the scale of this case, you can be sure that it's the biggest we've ever seen for a Swiss bank," said Tobias Lux, a spokesman for Swiss regulators.

Adoboli would join a gallery of rogues that includes Jerome Kerviel, who gambled away $6.7 billion at a French bank until he was caught in 2008; and Nick Leeson, whose unauthorized trades caused a British bank to collapse in 1995.

Backstory

UBS is struggling to restore its reputation after heavy losses from subprime mortgages and a U.S. tax evasion case that blew a hole in the Swiss tradition of banking secrecy. UBS took a $60 billion bailout from the Swiss government in 2008. The bank already planned to cut 3,500 jobs over two years, and Thursday's news of its $2 billion loss is likely to further anger shareholders. (AP)

Details of the alleged fraud were scarce, but UBS estimated the loss at $2 billion, enough so that it said it might report a quarterly loss.

By coincidence, the Swiss parliament began a long-slated debate on the country's banking industry Thursday. Lawmakers are being asked to weigh proposals to ensure Switzerland's two biggest banks, UBS and Credit Suisse Group, are under tighter control. (AP)

Red Riding Good

If you've been wondering what to get Capital Bikeshare for its first birthday, I know just the thing: its millionth ride. Someone is going to help CaBi hit that milestone over the next few days, which isn't so shocking given how ubiquitous those bright red bikes have become since the program launched Sept. 20 of last year. But even though hopes were high, no one expected little CaBi would grow up quite so fast.

"We've doubled most of our projections," says Chris Holben, who manages the program for D.C.'s Department of Transportation. He's talking ridership, membership (17,000) and the number of one-day rentals (more than 60,000). Now that CaBi's on a roll, there's been a surge of interest from other area jurisdictions. Montgomery County has secured funding to start a pilot with 20 CaBi stations, and Alexandria's considering joining the program, too. And it's time to gear up for an expansion in both D.C. and Arlington, with 62 stations being added to the map (beyond the 110-plus already in the system).

B-Day Bash!

Celebrate cycling at CaBi's birthday party at Yards Park in SE next Thursday (which is also Car-Free Day) from 6 to 9 p.m. Festivities include a slow bike race (last one to the finish line wins), a paperboy race, moon bounce games and free stuff. Details at Godcgo.com.

The goal is to establish a presence in every neighborhood and make bike riding an attractive option for commuting, running errands or spending leisure time. "We want people to be considering Bikeshare for every trip," says Chris Eatough, BikeArlington's program manager. Plenty of folks seem to be doing that already, notes Holben, who's heard a host of reasons why users adore the program. "It's fun and easy and cheap and green. You don't need to put on Lycra, and you don't need to store a bike in your house," he says.

By Vicky Hallett

There's one complaint the program's heard more than it was expecting, however. Riders say the morning commute becomes hectic when they have trouble finding an available bike near home and a place to park near work. When everyone empties out of the residential neighborhoods and floods downtown simultaneously, the current system can't handle it. Some riders have offered to pay a surcharge to reserve bikes during busy times, but so far, CaBi isn't interested. "It adds layers of complication," Eatough says. "Everyone has the same right to the bikes. It's called sharing."

Besides, the managers hope that by building more stations, redistribution of the bikes will happen more naturally. The National Park Service recently announced it would welcome stations on the Mall, provided the bikes don't sully the pretty monument views. But where else can they go in the already saturated urban core? That's a question for Holben, who needs to find flat, empty spaces for 6-foot-wide, 50-foot-long stations. "They're solar-powered, so they can't be in the shadow of a tall building or under a dense tree canopy," he adds. As the program expands out to the borders of the city, where houses aren't as close together, the problem becomes locating spots that will still be accessible by enough users.

Somehow, I suspect CaBi will figure out where it belongs — and will have racked up another few million rides in time for its next birthday party.

Abortion rights supporters rally in Richmond Wednesday, ahead of a vote by the Virginia Board of Health on rules that would regulate abortion clinics like hospitals.

Va. Board of Health OKs New Abortion Clinic Laws

Richmond, Va.

The Board of Health voted to adopt draft regulations for abortion clinics by a vote of 12 to 1 Thursday, after 4½ hours of emotional testimony from residents across the state.

Abortion-rights activists argue that the regulations, released last month, are simply a way to shut down many of the state's 22 clinics that perform abortions.

"We are here today not because of a concern over women's health," said Tarina Keene, executive director of NARAL Pro-Choice Virginia. "We are here today because of a political battle that has raged in this state for decades."

But anti-abortion advocates have been pushing for years to impose regulations that would treat abortion clinics as ambulatory surgery centers and require that they meet hospital-type regulations.

"Without adequate regulations, there is simply no way for anyone to know what's happened inside these clinics," said Chris Freund of the conservative Family Foundation. "Let's face facts here. The stats we have are provided by the industry itself. We cannot know what is happening inside these clinics."

The rules would apply to anyone in Virginia who provides five or more first-trimester abortions a month. Virginia law requires that second-trimester abortions be performed at hospitals.

The speakers split on support and opposition to the regulations. Regulatory changes to the Board of Health typically take up to two years to implement.

DCPS to administer U.S.' only statewide exams on sexuality

Washington

D.C. public and public charter schools, which annually test student progress in reading and math, will also measure what they know about human sexuality, contraception and drug use starting this spring.

The 50-question exam will be the nation's first statewide standardized test on health and sex education, according to the Office of the State Superintendent of Education, which developed the assessment for grades 5, 8 and 10.

The District's rates of childhood obesity, sexually transmitted disease and teen pregnancy are among the country's highest.

"It paints a fuller picture. We don't know what knowledge kids have about these topics."

— BRIAN PICK, DCPS' DEPUTY CHIEF OF CURRICULUM AND INSTRUCTION

Periodic surveys have detailed student attitudes toward risky behavior, but officials said the annual test will fill gaps in their understanding of what young people know and why they might behave the way they do.

A 2009 District study found that nearly half of the city's chlamydia and gonorrhea diagnoses were among District residents 15 to 19 years old.

Two-thirds of all diagnoses were among those younger than 24. Also, more than 3 percent of District residents older than 12 were living with HIV or AIDS in 2009, the report said.

The testing initiative combines two political and cultural flash points in American schools: sex education and standardized testing.

Some parents said yesterday that they didn't object to the idea out of hand but wanted to learn more about the details.

It will be administered in April on the District of Columbia Comprehensive Assessment System, or DC CAS, along with reading and math, composition, science and biology.

Wells Drafts Bill to Limit Lobbyists' Influence

Washington

In the first of what is expected to be a stream of ethics reform proposals from D.C. Council members, Tommy Wells, D-Ward 6, has drafted legislation that would severely curtail registered lobbyists influence on the political process and deflate council members' constituent service funds.

The bill, which Wells plans to formally introduce next week, would prohibit lobbyists from donating to political campaigns or a council members' constituent service fund.

Wells

The legislation also bars lobbyists from providing "free or discounted legal representation to elected officials" or their staffs, according to a summary of the bill obtained by The Post.

"I believe these are reasonable steps to restore confidence in our elected government. ... It's an election season, so the voters will be able to determine if these issues are important to them" Wells said.

Defying orders and tempting fate, then-Marine Cpl. Dakota Meyer charged five times in a Humvee into heavy gunfire in the darkness of a valley in Afghanistan to rescue comrades under attack from Taliban insurgents.

On Thursday, Meyer was presented with the Medal of Honor, the nation's highest military award, by President Obama.

Meyer's heroics during the six-hour ambush and firefight saved the lives of 36 people, both Americans and Afghans. He killed at least eight Taliban insurgents in providing cover for his team, allowing many to escape likely death.

He defied orders from his commanders, who told him to stay back. The kill zone, they said, was too dangerous. But Meyer, then just 21, knew his friends were trapped.

When the White House contacted Dakota Meyer to arrange his Medal of Honor ceremony, the 23-year-old Marine asked whether he could have a beer with President Obama, press secretary Jay Carney said. Obama invited him to the White House on Wednesday, and Carney tweeted a picture of the two. Members of the White House press corps re-tweeted the shot, and many followers praised the president's hospitality. But others offered cynical comments about the event being a staged photo op. It didn't take long for the usually combative White House reporters to stick up for Obama. "It would be nice to be able to post a photo of the president having a beer with a Marine without being besieged with snark. #GrowUp," Jake Tapper of ABC News tweeted. (THE WASHINGTON POST) served with distinction through a decade of war," Obama said during a ceremony in the East Room of the White House.

Meyer, promoted to sergeant and now out of the Marines, is the third living recipient of and the first living Marine to receive the Medal of Honor for actions in Iraq or Afghanistan. "You did your duty, above and beyond," Obama said.

The soft-spoken 23-year-old lives in his home state of Kentucky, working in construction in the town of Greensburg.

Obama praised Meyer for his humility and work ethic. When the White House tried to reach him, he worried whether he could take a call while on the job. The White House arranged for the president to call during Meyer's lunch break. With a smile, Obama thanked him at the ceremony for taking the call.

Meyer was part of a security team in the Ganjgal Valley on Sept. 8, 2009, when the Taliban ambushed the patrol. Meyer begged his command to let him help.

Four times he was denied. "They told him he couldn't go in," said Dwight Meyer, his 81-year-old grandfather, a former Marine. "He told them, 'The hell I'm not.'"

Meyer and another Marine, Staff Sgt. Juan Rodriguez-Chavez, jumped into a Humvee and headed in. Rodriguez-Chavez, 34, would receive the Navy Cross.

Meyer manned the Humvee's gun turret, making five trips into the kill zone to evacuate wounded soldiers. On the fifth trip, Meyer and two others dodged bullets and grenades to retrieve four bodies.

Despite Meyer's heroics, four

Then-Marine Cpl. Dakota Meyer served a tour in Afghanistan in 2009.

U.S. soldiers died: 1st Lt. Michael Johnson, 25, of Virginia Beach, Va.; Staff Sgt. Aaron Kenefick, 30, of Roswell, Ga.; Corpsman James Layton, 22, of Riverbank, Calif.; and Edwin Wayne Johnson Jr., 31, a gunnery sergeant from Columbus, Ga. A fifth, Army Sgt. Kenneth W. Westbrook, 41, of Shiprock, N.M., later died from his wounds.

Meyer says he has struggled with the attention, with being recognized for the worst day of his life. The president assured Meyer that he had let no one down.

"Dakota, I know you've grappled with the grief of that day, that you said your efforts were somehow a failure because your teammates didn't come home," Obama said. "But as your commander in chief, and on behalf of everyone here today and all Americans, I want you to know it's quite the opposite." JULIE PACE (AP)

In Cooley and Davis, Redskins have a pair of strong tight ends

The Redskins

After one week, the Redskins have a problem at tight end, the kind of problem nearly every NFL team would love to have.

Fred Davis had the breakthrough that people have been waiting on for years, notching his first career 100-yard receiving game in last Sunday's win over the Giants. And Chris Cooley returned to action from a pesky

"What a couple of tight ends enables you to do is present different packages to the defense. The more you can do, the more you can keep defenses off balance."

— MIKE SHANAHAN, ON THE FLEXIBILITY HE HAS WITH CHRIS COOLEY AND FRED DAVIS.

knee injury and moved into first place on the Redskins' tight end receiving list.

Suddenly, tight end isn't a question mark — it's an exclamation point.

"The combo of Cooley and Fred is pretty dangerous," Redskins quarterback Rex Grossman said.

It makes sense to get both players on the field as much as possible, but are there enough balls for both of them?

"I've heard so much talk about, 'Who's the tight end in this offense?

One of these guys is going to star," Cooley said. "For both of us to be in the game making plays is going to be huge. We feel like we can contribute immensely."

While Cooley is a proven commodity, the Redskins have been waiting for Davis to display the talent that made him a second-round selection in the 2008 draft. On Sunday, he had a breakout game, catching five passes for 105 yards.

"I feel like this was something I could do," Davis said

The Redskins are part of a

3 Things to Watch

1 Timmy Tamm! Redskins RB Tim Tamm guaranteed a win over the Cardinals, his former team, but he'll have to do better than 2.9 yards per carry to back it up.

2 Secondary to None: Arizona's callow secondary looked terrible last week, so Rex Grossman should have the chance to equal or better his 305 yards passing.

3 Giving Them Fitz: Larry Fitzgerald is one of the league's premier WRs, and the Redskins' secondary will have its hands full keeping him in check, especially if LaRon Landry is out. E.S.

growing number of teams that are turning to two tight ends for more than just protection.

Cooley's troublesome knee kept him out of most of training camp and the entire preseason. There was speculation that he wouldn't see the field until Week 4, so playing against the Giants and notching his 422nd reception with the team was special for the eight-year vet.

"I made a huge commitment to getting better, and to be on the field at all was a big accomplishment for me," he said. "I want to be able to make a difference for this team. I'm not willing to not be a part of it."

And while two players fighting to stand out at the same position might lead to some hard feelings, both Cooley and Davis say they are partners in making the Redskins better. "We're good," Davis said of his relationship with Cooley. "There's no tension. We help each other." ELLIOTT SMITH

Coaches Bring New Look to Old Rivalry

Terps Football

Along with all the congratulations and the pats on the back, one sentiment was expressed to Randy Edsall over and over when he was introduced as Maryland's new football coach in January: Beat West Virginia.

For Maryland, a school without a hated ACC rival — Duke, after all, is not so good in football — West Virginia, a Big East school 200 miles northwest, is about as close as it comes.

The decades-long rivalry, interrupted briefly for two years, resumed last year with the Mountaineers jumping out early and besting the Terrapins 31-17 in Morgantown. With that, 18th-ranked West Virginia (2-0) has won the past five meetings, rebounding after Maryland (1-0) took control of the series in the early years of Ralph Friedgen's tenure as coach.

"I understand the importance with them being a neighboring state, the rivalry that builds," Edsall said.

Saturday's game represents the introduction of two new head coaches to the rivalry. West Virgin-

'A Sense of Pride'

After making a splash with the last-minute wardrobe change that put the Terrapins in their new Maryland Pride uniforms for the season opener, coach Randy Edsall hit the recruiting trail hard and said the response to the team's uniforms — and the team's play against Miami — was overwhelmingly positive. "I think the people here in this region ... are starting to feel a little bit more of a sense of pride," said Edsall, who revealed on Wednesday that the Terps will wear all-black uniforms against West Virginia. D.T.

ia's Dana Holgorsen is in his first year in Morgantown, taking over amid a strange offseason that first saw him sign on as offensive coordinator and head coach-in-waiting. Ultimately, Bill Stewart stepped aside and Holgorsen replaced him a year ahead of schedule.

Holgorsen brings with him a fast-paced spread offense not unlike the scheme introduced at Maryland this season.

A win on Saturday could propel Maryland into the Top 25 and redirect the talk about Terrapin football from the controversial uniforms worn in the season-opening win over Miami to the merits of the team's play.

"I just hope that we get better," Edsall said. "It's the old adage in football that a team makes their biggest improvement between game one and game two. ... I do know this: We have to improve if we want to go out and get a win."

CARDINALS (PLUS 4) AT REDSKINS

CARDINALS

Something tells me this week of happy thoughts in D.C. was too good to be true.

RAIDERS (PLUS 3) AT BILLS

BILLS

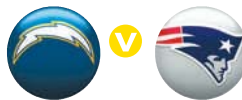

You can't stop Ryan Fitzpatrick. You can only hope to contain him.

BEARS (PLUS 6.5) AT SAINTS

SAINTS

Darren Sproles is going to turn out to be a great acquisition for the Saints.

CHARGERS (PLUS 8) AT PATRIOTS

PATRIOTS

Just because there's only one team that could go 16-0 this year, and it's the Pats.

EAGLES (MINUS 2.5) AT FALCONS

EAGLES

Michael Vick will get bigger cheers than Matt Ryan this week.

REDSKINS

This was one of the few games I thought they'd win even before the season began.

BILLS

I don't normally quote Chris Berman, but: NOBODY CIRCLES THE WAGONS like the Buffalo Bills.

BEARS

Urlacher and his Bears defense will be inspired after the passing of his mother this week.

PATRIOTS

The Chargers lost their starting kicker for the season last week, and it may come down that.

FALCONS

The Eagles weren't super-impressive last week, and the Falcons really need this game.

REDSKINS

Kolb commits Cardinal sins against Orakpo, Kerrigan and friends. The Rex-Skins romp.

BILLS

Short week, cross-country flight and a 1 p.m. start time? No, thanks.

SAINTS

New Orleans' defense devours Chicago as Brees serves the Bears with dome cooking.

PATRIOTS

Brady arrives at Foxboro. Removes Uggs. Throws TDs to tight ends. Styles hair. Puts Uggs back on.

FALCONS

Southern hospitality? I think not. Dirty Birds turn into Angry Birds.

REDSKINS

There are some alarmingly optimistic numbers about NFL teams that start 2-0.

BILLS

Based on Week 1, you'd have to assume the Super Bowl will be a rematch of XXVI.

SAINTS

Classic bounce-back game for the Saints. Classic bounce-back game for the Bears.

PATRIOTS

Rivers and Brady seem likely to combine for 47 million yards passing in this game.

EAGLES

I'm tempted to say the same thing I said about the Saints-Bears game, except Eagles will win.

Season Tally: Dan Steinberg, 5-0; Public Bar, 4-1; Clinton Yates, 3-2; Matt Swenson, 2-3; Arnie Applebaum, 0-5; Big Tigger, 0-5

The Nats Sweep Past the Mets Into Third Place

The Nationals

Ian Desmond had a career-high five hits and Tommy Milone earned his first major league win, leading the Nationals over the slumping New York Mets 10-1 on Thursday for a rare four-game sweep.

Desmond drove in three late runs from his leadoff spot as the Nationals won their fifth-straight game overall and moved past the Mets into third place in the NL East. The franchise has not finished third or higher since 2002, when it played in Montreal and ended the season in second place.

Milone (1-0) became the second-consecutive Nationals rookie starter to notch his first career victory, following Brad Peacock's 2-0 win over New York on Wednesday night. (AP)

United Moves on Without Injured Pontius

Major League Soccer

The timing could not have been worse for Chris Pontius and D.C. United.

After setting up Charlie Davis for three goals in United's crucial 3-0 victory over Chivas USA, Pontius suffered a non-displaced tibia fracture in his right leg after an awkward challenge, ending a season that had been the greatest of his three-year career.

"I feel bad for the kid," said D.C. coach Ben Olsen, who fought through his share of injuries during his playing career. "I've been down that road. It's never fun. It obviously affects us as well, because he's a big

Pontius' recent form — which earned him a nod from the U.S. national team a couple of weeks ago — certainly coincided with D.C.'s improved play. The club is 3-1-2 in its past six matches and is finally part of the postseason picture after a long stretch on the border.

Although replacing Pontius' production (seven goals, five assists) on the left side of the midfield isn't a desirable task, D.C. has the depth to soften the blow. Olsen's options on the left wing include club staple Santino Quaranta and newcomer Austin da Luz.

Quaranta, for one, has seen his role with the team expand again after being benched because of injury or ineffectiveness for a long stretch of the season. He has started in four of United's past five matches and has three assists in that time.

"For me, it's the same approach every game," Quaranta said. "I'm not going to put more of a burden on myself, but I'd say all of us have to pick it up a little bit."

Da Luz was acquired from New York in July to supplement D.C.'s midfield options, and his craftiness should come in handy as he moves up the depth chart. "We're all feeling for Chris. He was playing so well and really putting us on his back a little bit," da Luz said.

Sounders Check

D.C. United ventures to the raucous CenturyLink Field in Seattle on Saturday for a date with the red-hot Seattle Sounders, who boast the second-most points in MLS. "We have to try and jump on them early and control the crowd, because they can play a big factor," D.C. midfielder Austin da Luz said. Seattle's home attendance averages upward of 35,000 a game. D.C. captured the earlier meeting between the two clubs, taking a 2-1 result at RFK Stadium on May 4, and is riding high off its win over Chivas last weekend. A.C.

Barry Manilow

SINGER-SONGWRITER, ACTIVIST, DISCO KING

Someone you know fell in love slow-dancing to Barry Manilow tunes. So it's ironic that with four decades of No. 1 love songs, the singer struggles with atrial fibrillation (A-fib), an irregular heartbeat that can lead to heart failure. Now, Manilow's speaking out, encouraging others with the ailment to mend their broken (but not irreparable) hearts.

Why did you get involved with the "Get Back in Rhythm" campaign?
 I want people to know that if their heart is going wacky and out of rhythm, they need to see their doctor and take it seriously. I didn't realize there were so many people who have A-fib. I don't like talking about my health or my personal life, but I wanted to be public about this [disease] and help somebody.

Have you ever gone into A-fib on stage or in an interview?

One time, I was scheduled to do a show with the Boston Pops on July 4. I was the headliner, and I woke up in the morning and felt this thing starting, and I couldn't believe it. It got more and more violent, so doctors had to shock my heart back into rhythm with paddles. You know, "Clear! Bang!" When I woke up, my heart was back in normal rhythm, and I went to sound check and nobody knew that it had happened.

Has it interrupted your touring?

Well, it's affected my lifestyle, because I don't know when it's going to hit. I've had it for 15 years, and it can hit at any time. I can't predict it. It has nothing to do with stress — I can't tell you how many times I've had those paddles. That's why I'm trying to get the word out.

Speaking of hearts, you've been singing love songs since the '70s. Do you think about how you've influenced so many love stories?
 Over the years, I've realized the impact I've had. It humbles me. I get the letters that tell me that I've comforted people, that the music has done great things for them. When you do what I do, you don't know what your impact is going to be. Over the years, I've realized that it's made a difference.

"Disco's been here forever. It comes back in different forms, but it's the same four-on-the-floor beat."

You're also known for your '70s fashion sense.

Was there '70s fashion sense?

Of course! And disco is back in style. Are you happy your decade is hip again?

Oh, no! Not those platform shoes! [Laughter.] Disco's been here forever. It comes back in different forms, but it's the same four-on-the-floor beat, [even though] it always sounds different. But dance records will always be popular.

You grew up in Williamsburg, Brooklyn, before it was fashionable. Are you surprised that Williamsburg is so hip now?

Oh, yeah! Taxi drivers wouldn't even take me home when I said "Williamsburg." It was so dangerous. When I was there, you wanted to stay away.

The Swiss are known for banks, cheeses and watches. But for fall, it's back in a big, warm way at British brand Boden (Bodenusa.com), where the Yorkshire-woven material cozies up to coats (shown, $398), kitten heels ($194) and miniskirts. THE WEDGE, like the wheel, is a simple, ancient, elegant tool. Why try to reinvent it? Because it didn't come in fashion colors! Stoppy ($8, Containerstore.com) is a flexible plastic door- and window-stop; the 4-inch-long thingy can squeeze between walls, floors and your choice of egress. Unlike a normal wedge, you can crush Stoppy with your hand to relieve stress. It also looks like an apostrophe, so in a pinch, Stoppy can correct flawed signage. Bobs School Supplies will thank you.

RESTORATION HARDWARE'S 615-page fall catalog thrums with weighty, steampunk-industrial pieces: steel lamps ($1,350), doctor's eye charts ($345-$595) and leather trunk desks. Its verbiage seems serious, too, as in terms such as "heritage" and "one-of-a-kind." It might add "Dr. Frankenstein cool" to its lexicon, since the creepy-fab Scissor Lift Table (shown, $1,995) works equally well for cocktails or minor medical procedures.

IT'S VERY AMERICAN to take a culture's prized cuisine, distill it, and reproduce it in a way that can be reheated by bachelors living in Foggy Bottom. Dear Manolo

ANSWERS FROM THE SHOE BLOGGER

I will be traveling to a wedding in Rome at the beginning of October. This will be my very first trip to Italy, and my first experience at a Roman wedding. While the issues of dress are important, I have the feeling that my choice of footwear will be paramount. Can you help me with a fabulous, stylish pair of shoes that will fit in appropriately for such a big occasion? I will note that this wedding will not be taking place in a church. — AMY Manolo says: Oh! How wonderful that the Manolo's friend is to be visiting Rome in the month of October. This is undoubtedly the most beautiful time to be in the Eternal City, and if one is lucky, everything, from the crystalline blue skies and the gentle warm sun, to the charming way your waiter winks at you as he takes your order, will conspire to make you fall in love with the city. Even the ever-present possibility of sudden death by taxi will only add to the magic of Rome.

Of the course, if one is not lucky, your bags will be plundered at the airport by the corrupt officials, gypsies will steal your purse near the Coliseum, and the crazy Roman drivers will douse you repeatedly with muddy water left in puddles along the street by the unseasonable rain.

But such are the chances one takes when one travels, no?

Here is the Tilly from Kate Spade New York ($299, Zappos.com), the molto elegante demi-d'Orsay pump in red that would go well with almost anything.

If the new DIY movement has a fairy godmother, it'd be Grace Bonney, the Brooklyn blogger behind Design*Sponge (Designsponge.com), one of the Web's most popular nesting sites. In her trademark "You can do it!" attitude, she and her staff chronicle home trends including alphabet rugs and zigzag curtains; reveal readers' crafts (pillow sewing, chair painting); and peek into chic spaces. Her book, "Design*Sponge at Home" ($35, Artisan), shows off content from the site plus new projects such as flower-arranging and table-making. We chatted with her about flea markets, her handmade headboard and other stylish matters. JENNIFER BARGER (EXPRESS)

The Craft House

You were at the forefront of the DIY movement. What spurred it?

DIY has crept back into so many niches, including food. Primarily, it's the economy. People have looked at a lot of things and found they weren't essential. They want to spend a little less money and make their homes their own.

So if I haven't DIYed before, how do you recommend getting started? Aren't some things just too hard?

Really complicated upholstery does require a skilled hand. But for the most part, I think if you see something and think, "Maybe I should do that," then you probably should try.

How have blogs and the crafting changed how we decorate our homes?

Blogs have made people look at flea markets, Ikea and other sources in a different way. Now they don't always look at things and think, "What can

I buy premade?" They're more into buying a chair at a flea market, then stripping it, painting it or adding hardware.

You show a lot of cool projects in the book. Which one is your favorite?

The one where you take old wine crates, line them with wallpaper, and hang them on the wall. It's on trend, and it makes a big impact.

What's the key to not messing up a project?

Be prepared. Approach it like a chef would cooking, with things laid out neatly.

What's your favorite project you've done for your own space?

The headboard that I upholstered with a staple gun. It was validation that DIY upholstery can be beautiful.

In "Design*Sponge at Home," hip nesters show off innovative ways to use old things: vintage suitcases turned storage chests, a weathered framed repurposed as a bulletin board.

MATTHEW WILLIAMS

Make a Map Box

Designer/stylist Bettina Pedersen loved maps so much that she decided to incorporate them into her home decor. This simple box project uses a variety of maps, including countrywide themes and detailed city street layouts, and can be adapted to work with any type of map you like. EXCERPTED FROM "DESIGN*Sponge at Home" BY GRACE BONNEY (ARTISAN BOOKS). COPYRIGHT 2011.

- 1 Measure the perimeter of the box bottom and the box height (without lid). Add 1/2 inch to the perimeter and 1 1/4 inches to the height. Cut a piece of map with these dimensions.
- 2 Brush an even layer of Mod Podge on the back of the map and wrap it around the box sides so there is 5/8 inch extra at top and bottom.
- 3 Miter corners and fold the 5/8 inch of extra paper over top edge and onto bottom; glue to secure.
- 4 Measure the height of the box lid. Place lid over the image chosen for the top and trace around it with a pencil. On each side of the resulting rectangle, add height of the box lid, plus 1/2 inch. Cut out piece of map.
- 5 Brush an even layer of Mod Podge on the rectangle you drew on the map and attach it to the top of the box. Add glue to the edges of the map and wrap the box top like a present. Miter the corners and fold the 1/2 inch of extra paper over the top edge of the lid.

BETTINA PEDERSON

Right: Interiors meshing bold colors and bright prints star in "Design*Sponge at Home." It's a mix-and-match aesthetic that shows up often on Grace Bonney's blog, too. Below: In the book, recipes for flower arrangements show how you can turn supermarket blooms into stellar centerpieces.

JOYTHIGPEN

You also show off a lot of very well-decorated homes. Any favorite elements worth stealing?

This one guy used skis as shelving, which has this wacky beauty to it. I like it when people use materials in an unexpected way.

There's a big flower-arranging section in the book. What's the key to doing it without spending a ton?

I think you just need to know three basic things to make an arrangement. You have to create a frame for the flowers out of woodsier stems, then put in medium-weight flowers, then delicate ones.

Are we seeing a trickle-up effect in decor? I keep noticing these chairs that look very Craigslist-meets-crafter at big-box stores.

Yes. I think that as the economy doesn't do well, the big boxes have to offer something that appeals to the younger market. And we like things that feel handmade and things that are colorful.

What's your own apartment like?

Well, right now I'm swinging the pendulum and going more minimalist. I've been bringing in a lot of aged wood, and I've been stripping out a lot of pattern and color.

What should I look for at the flea market?

People should try to scoop up antique demijohns [large glass jars]. They're pretty inexpensive and you can use them to bring greenery in. If you put a bunch of dogwood blossoms in one, it's like having a tree in your house.

Any tips on buying furniture on Craigslist or eBay?

On eBay and Craigslist, search on common terms but misspell them — you'll get the best deals. People can't spell Eames right!

Where do you get inspired?

I try to find inspiration outside of my own niche. I pay attention to food pubs a lot. There's a beautiful new magazine, Lucky Peach, which is the most creative I've seen in awhile. For blogs, like this L.A.-based one about graphic design, Thefoxisblack.com. It's really cutting-edge.

"Blogs have made people look at flea markets, Ikea ... in a different way. Now they don't ... think, 'What can I buy premade?'"

'Drive' reinvigorates the wheelman genre with style, smarts and Ryan Gosling

Film Review

Star of the moment Ryan Gosling delivers a slow, white-hot burn of a performance in "Drive," a nervy, understated ode to one of Hollywood's most cherished archetypes, the sad-eyed man of few words.

They can be cowboys, hit men or, in this case, loners who drive cars for a living. But no matter how chilly and reserved, the mysteries at their core mesmerize rather than repel. As a getaway driver known only as Driver, Gosling obviously harkens back to similar protagonists played by Lee Marvin, Robert De Niro and especially Steve McQueen.

But in "Drive," Gosling and director Nicolas Winding Refn neatly manage the hat trick of paying homage to those wheelmen of yore while reinvigorating the genre with style, smarts and flashes of wit. You may still want to fasten your seat belt, but in these capable, seductive hands, you're in for a smooth, uncommonly assured ride.

That's made clear in the opening sequence of "Drive," when Gosling's character fetches two thieves from a Los Angeles warehouse. Found out by the police, who begin to pursue them by way of patrol cars and a helicopter, Driver leads the fuzz not on the wheel-screaming, bombastic chase audience might expect, but on a quiet, cat-and-mouse prowling through L.A.'s nighttime back streets, winding up in the endless arches of a parking garage.

At once classic and refreshingly new, the sequence establishes Driver's watchful calm and psychic mettle, as well as Refn's indisputable chops as a filmmaker with firm command of tone, rhythm and irresistibly propulsive pacing.

It turns out that Driver's getaway gig is just a sideline; his day job becomes clear in one of the all-time great movie "reveals," which makes "Drive" not just a fast-car action picture but a wry commentary on Hollywood artifice.

Carey Mulligan, as Driver's new neighbor Irene, may be miscast as the wife of a low-level criminal named Standard (the terrific Oscar Isaac), but her chemistry with Gosling is entirely believable.

Drive (R)

- Director: Nicolas Winding Refn
- Stars: Ryan Gosling, Carey Mulligan, Oscar Isaac
- In a Nutshell: A Hollywood stunt performer who moonlights as a wheelman discovers that a contract has been put on him after a heist gone wrong.
- For Fans Of: "Taxi Driver," "The Getaway," "Point Blank"

After skillfully earning the audience's allegiance, "Drive" throws its hero's motives into more troubling ambiguity, with Gosling's grievous angel proving to be capable of startling brutality. Like the scorpion on his jacket, he can't escape his nature, and Refn does a good job of keeping that core moral essence opaque until the explosive end. He's also constructed a perfect showcase for Gosling's hand-dog charisma, which has come into its own this year.

But most important, "Drive" features a compulsively watchable cipher at its center. Low-key, sleek and sophisticated, "Drive" provides the visceral pleasures of pulp without sacrificing art. It's cool and smart. Some critics might even call it European.

Backstory

Inspiration Strikes

Nicolas Winding Refn, above, had the flu when he first met Ryan Gosling to discuss "Drive" and says "it was like a blind date gone terribly wrong." Then, he had an idea. "I screamed in Ryan's face, 'I got it!' ... 'It's about a man who drives around listening to pop music... that's his emotional relief.' Ryan said, 'I'm in.'" A.H.

'Higher' Praise

We all bring our biases to the movies, myself included. As open-minded as I try to be, there are certain things I won't see (horror films) and things I always look forward to (Colin Firth!).

More than that, I always bring my experiences — for example, since I became a mom, I find it much harder to watch any movie in which a child is in danger or dies. But never has my Christianity been so present with me in a theater as it was when I saw "Higher Ground," which opens Friday. Director

Vera Farmiga, above, insists it's not a "Christian film," and I believe her. But for me, this story of Corinne (Farmiga), who finds, then questions, faith, was the most moving portrayal of Christian faith I have ever seen on-screen.

The real triumph of the film is its message that questioning the tenets of a church (or an entire religion) is not antithetical to claiming membership in that faith — you can be a Christian and still be a little unsure of what that exactly means, particularly when the loudest voices of your faith are often the most obnoxious.

In "Higher Ground," thinking is not incompatible with believing. I do not believe that God is displeased when we use our brains; I do believe that boiling down faith so it fits on a bumper sticker does a disservice to both common sense and the mysteries inherent in any system of belief. In "Higher Ground," faith takes work and struggle and, above all, a brain.

The number of subscribers Netflix expects to have at the end of September, down from 25 million in June, as customer backlash against higher rates kicking in this month has been much harsher than anticipated. Netflix's decision to raise prices by as much as 60 percent is turning into a horror show for the largest U.S. video subscription service. The company's stock plummeted about 15 percent during trading Thursday after the announcement. (AP)

Please, Don't Ask

Trust us — you really don't want to know 'How She Does It'

Film Review

As reported in Entertainment Weekly, actress Christina Applegate — who plays a harried working mother in the new sitcom "Up All Night" — made the producers swear off one of Hollywood's most excruciating parenting clichés. We mention this only because it would have been nice if Sarah Jessica Parker — who plays Kate, a harried working mother in the insipid, unfunny and cliché-ridden "I Don't Know How She Does It" — had held the filmmakers to a similar standard. Okay, maybe not exactly nice. The film is so bad it's hard to imagine anything saving it. But it might at least have been slightly less torturous to sit through.

Along with the offending spit-up-on-the-blouse joke, "I Don't Know How She Does It" strip-mines every last nugget from the mother lode of maternal movie comedy, including gags about head lice, bake-sale envy and morning sickness. That last one comes courtesy of Kate's assistant (Olivia Munn), who gets pregnant halfway through the film and spends the rest of the time retching.

CRAIG BLANKENHORN

I Don't Know How She Does It (PG-13)

- Director: Douglas McGrath
- Stars: Sarah Jessica Parker, Olivia Munn
- In a Nutshell: A comedy centered on the life of Kate Reddy, a finance executive who is the breadwinner for her husband and two kids.

Always good for a laugh. If you're a sitcom, circa 1975.

In addition to across-the-board lame acting, the film boasts a bizarre worldview that seems to simultaneously sympathize with the working mother — or at least the caricature of one — and to demonize her. At one point toward the end of the film, Parker's Kate opines, in voice-over, that "trying to be a man is a waste of a woman," as though there were something inherently unfeminine about working outside the home.

It's not a sitcom circa 1975, after all, but circa 1955. MICHAEL O'SULLIVAN
(THE WASHINGTON POST)

Now Playing

COLOMBIANA (PG-13, 105 minutes) The protagonist of "Colombiana" is a young woman who has strong feelings for her parents, a warm relationship with her boyfriend and a proclivity for sketching the delicate Colombian orchid for which she's named. Of course, her parents are dead, her boyfriend is at great risk, and she draws the flower in black lipstick on the bodies of her victims. Yes, Catalaya is an assassin. And, yes, she has vowed revenge on the drug dealers who killed her folks. But despite a list of hits that's topped 20, the killer — played by "Avatar's" Zoe Saldana — is a sensitive, sometimes weepy soul. And "Colombiana," at least by comparison with such Besson franchises as the "Transporter" series, has a gentle touch. MARK JENKINS

CLAUDETTE BARBUS/WARNER BROS.

"Contagion" must have turned Marion Cotillard, center, into quite the germaphobe. On "The Daily Show" last week, she wouldn't even shake Jon Stewart's hand.

CONTAGION (PG-13, 102 MINUTES)

Before this movie is over, you will stop unconsciously touching your face. The script, which is reportedly based on solid scientific research about disease and its transmission, treatment and control, is admirably unsensational. And that's even considering the fact that the virus at the heart of the story has a shorter and more lethal incubation period than anything we've previously seen. Gwyneth Paltrow, whose Beth Emhoff is the first to come down with the new disease, is dead minutes into the movie. Hundreds of millions of victims follow, though Beth's husband, Mitch, played by a schlubby-looking Matt

entertainment lookout

Damon, remains immune. Along with his teenage daughter (Anna Jacoby-Heron), Mitch spends most of the movie sensibly holed up inside his house, as the world around him descends into a chaos of looting and Internet-fueled panic. M.O. CRAZY, STUPID, LOVE (PG-13, 118 minutes) "Crazy, Stupid, Love" opens with a clever montage of couples' feet engaging in all manner of furtive flirtation under restaurant tables. When the camera lands on Cal Weaver (Steve Carell) and his wife, Emily (Julianne Moore), their troubles are clear. She's wearing come-hither heels while Cal is decked out in schlumpy New Balance sneakers. She's still trying, but Cal has given up, which accounts for why Emily announces at that same restaurant that she wants a divorce. He numbly agrees, moves out of their comfortable house and into a depressing bachelor pad and begins hitting a singles bar, where he comes under the tutelage of serial seducer Jacob Palmer (Ryan Gosling), a playah Pygmalion who takes Cal on as a personal makeover project. What ensues is the kind of smooth, fitfully funny, finely machined romantic comedy that is expertly calibrated to hit all the rom-com happy places. A.H. THE DEBT (R, 114 minutes) Splitting its story between two years, 1966 and 1997, "The Debt" follows three Mossad agents forced to ask themselves what constitutes justice after the Holocaust's unthinkable crimes. Though Helen Mirren features most prominently in advertising materials, the film's heart beats with the younger version of her character, played by this year's breakthrough actress, Jessica Chastain. As Rachel Singer, an agent pursuing "Surgeon of Birkenau" Dieter Vogel, she poses as an East German fertility patient and must allow the man she's hunting to give her multiple medical examinations. We know from the film's first scenes (set in 1997) that Singer's team will capture the doctor, who will later be killed trying to escape, and that the three will be hailed as Israeli heroes. But how they caught Vogel, and their attempts to bring him back alive, are the meat of the story. JOHN DEFORE DON'T BE AFRAID OF THE DARK (R, 99 minutes) "Don't Be Afraid of the Dark" feels retro in all the right ways. Screenwriters Guillermo del Toro and Matthew Robbins adapted the script from a 1973 TV movie of the same name. The changes they made pull the tale further back, though, into the realm of fable—especially their decision to change the protagonist from an adult to a little girl: Sally (Bailee Madison) has been sent by her preoccupied mother to live with her father and his new girlfriend (Guy Pearce and Katie Holmes) in the grand old mansion they're renovating. Sally doesn't want to be there but can't resist exploring. Soon she discovers a hidden basement whose rusty, boltedup ash pit speaks to her. Scratchy, faint voices whisper to Sally, offering friendship. Followers of del Toro's work will see reminders of "Pan's Labyrinth" here, but the storyteller is writing for another director, first-timer Troy Nixey, and keeps the action rooted in the real world. J.D. FRIGHT NIGHT (R, 120 minutes) "Fright Night" improves on the premise it has been handed, producing a modernized version of a decades-old story that's superior to its predecessor in virtually every aspect. In this case, "Fright Night" director Craig Gillespie remakes Todd Holland's 1985 horror comedy of the same name. The story still steals from Alfred Hitchcock's masterpiece "Rear Window," with awkward teenager Charlie Brewster (Anton Yelchin) casting suspicions that his mysterious new neighbor, Jerry (Colin Farrell), is a vampire. As Charlie's accusations fall on deaf ears, the arrogant Jerry engages in a deadly cat-and-mouse game that draws in Charlie's childhood friend (Christopher Mintz-Plasse) and his girlfriend (Imogene Poots). At its best, "Fright Night" mixes sly pop-culture references, "Twilight" jabs and Scooby gang jokes with legitimately suspenseful horror Continued on page 32

THE HELP (PG-13, 137 minutes) Fans of Kathryn Stockett's folksy, ingratiating novel of the same name can rest easy:

The director, Tate Taylor — a childhood friend of the author who, like her, grew up in Jackson, Miss., where the story is set — has preserved the book's story line, characters and confiding tone with loyalty worthy of any best friend. Readers who felt they came to intimately know characters such as Celia (Jessica Chastain) and Skeeter (Emma Stone) are likely to greet their alter egos on screen like cherished, long-lost friends — especially the nobly suffering Aibileen, here brought to quietly watchful life by Viola Davis. Skeeter gets a job as a newspaper cleaning-advice columnist, but when she asks Aibileen for some tips, she realizes that the real story lies in the emotional lives of black women who virtually raise their white employers' children, but who are treated by those same families as unfit to share a kitchen utensil, much less political or economic power. A.H.

ONE DAY (PG-13, 103 minutes) Anyone who has read the book will be prepared for the radical turn "One Day" takes; those who haven't may want to brace themselves. The star-crossed British couple at the center of this familiar object lesson are Emma and Dexter, whose college graduation-night hookup on July 15, 1988, ends in a platonic cuddle amid vows always to stay friends. "One Day," which screenwriter David Nicholls adapted from his own novel, then traces the erstwhile couple's friendship in episodic snapshots captured on succeeding July 15ths, tracing their lives and careers as the brainy, slightly cynical Emma seeks the writer's life and Dexter—rich, spoiled, lazy—becomes a cheesy MTV talk show host. As personified by Anne Hathaway and Jim Sturgess, Emma and Dexter make for a pretty convincing friends-who-should-be-lovers couple, a la Harry and Sally et alia. A.H. OUR IDIOT BROTHER (R, 96 minutes) "Our Idiot Brother" turns out to be mis-titled. It should be called "The Brother We Treat Like an Idiot," and that goes as much for the filmmakers as the ape underground, after suffering abuse at the hands of a sadistic handler at a primate shelter (Tom Felton). Caesar and his simian followers are both relatable and scary as heck. Now for the bad news. The filmmakers seem to have spent so much attention and, presumably, money on getting the primates right that they completely forgot about the people. Led by a mumble-mouthed James Franco, the cast of human actors is uniformly weak. M.O. WARRIOR (PG-13, 139 minutes) Judging from its poster—a stark black sheet on which two shirtless dudes display a dozen well-defined abs and four frightening pecs—"Warrior" should be just another slab of lunkhead cinema, a thin story designed to fill UFC coffers and bolster the big-screen ambitions of muscle-men. Don't be fooled. Tom Hardy plays Tommy, a black-sheep son with a father (played by Nick Nolte) so abusive that he and his mother fled to the other side of the country. Tommy's brother Brendan (Joel Edgerton), meanwhile, stayed at home to be near his sweetheart. They're now married with kids, and although they have three jobs between them, they're financially underwater. Independently of each other, these sons of a violent home discover an opportunity to turn aggression into cash: In Atlantic City, the Sparta tournament will pit mixed-martial-arts combatants against one another for a $5 million prize. J.D.

dysfunctional family at the core of this easygoing misfire. Paul Rudd plays Ned Rochlin, a perpetually blissed-out biodynamic farmer who in the film's first scene sells pot to a police officer. When he gets out of jail, he embarks on a serial-crash with his three sisters, upending their lives with his anarchic honesty and unbridled naivete. A.H. RISE OF THE PLANET OF THE APES (PG-13, 110 minutes) First, the good news. "Rise of the Planet of the Apes," the much-anticipated prequel to the sci-fi movie franchise of the late '60s and early '70s about a world ruled by apes, gets one thing exactly right. The apes, which we see on the cusp of world domination, are both terrifying and sympathetic. That's not an easy trick. Yet it's critical to this origin story, which charts the ascent of a hyper-intelligent chimp named Caesar (Andy Serkis, in motion-capture CGI) to the role of leader of an

1 Get on the Bus

Food trucks are far too trendy for our tastes. Our money's on the food-drive bus — get it? It's literally a "drive." Food charity DC Central Kitchen is dispatching a bus to tool around D.C. for the next two weeks and gather donations of food and money to feed the city's hungry. You can find the bus at the H Street Festival this weekend, or follow it on Twitter (@govenga) to keep abreast of subsequent stop locations. Various locations; Sat. through Sept. 30; Facebook.com/govenga.

2 Mallets in Wonderland

Despite the term "meadow," the weekly twilight polo matches at Great Meadow are played in a dirt arena — which makes the game easier to follow and leaves the grassy spaces free for strolling, letting kids frolic, and sipping wine while wearing sundresses and enormous hats. The polo season ends this weekend with a Saturday night game. Great Meadow, 5089 Old Tavern Road, The Plains, Va.; Sat., 6:30 p.m., $30 per carload or $10 per person; 540-253-5000, Greatmeadow.org.

3 Miller's Crossover

It's hard to find anything wrong with Rhett Miller. He went solo, but there was no acrimonious band breakup — he still fronts for his alt-country group the Old 97's and participates in the Satellite Rides, a faux tribute band to the Old 97's that's actually just the band under a new name. Miller, left, writes crowd-pleasing songs that manage to include references to Kafka and Wagner. He even has pretty blue eyes. He'll be on his own for an afternoon all-ages show this weekend. Rams Head On Stage, 33 West St., Annapolis; Sat., 1 p.m., $22; 410-268-4545, Ramsheadonstage.com.

The Red Carpet's Ready

And the stage is set for the 63rd annual Primetime Emmys

Awards

SUN 8:00 Jane Lynch didn't trip over the red carpet while rolling it out Wednesday in anticipation of Sunday's Emmy ceremony. Despite dreaming that she might experience a "face plant" as the show's host, Lynch pulled it off without a hitch.

"I don't even know where I am anymore," she joked at the carpet unveiling with the show's executive producer, Mark Burnett.

For the fourth year, the awards show will be held at the Nokia Theatre in Los Angeles. It airs on Fox.

Lynch teased that the 63rd annual Primetime Emmys would feature an appearance by such members of MTV's "Jersey Shore" gang as Nicole "Snooki" Polizzi, Paul "DJ Pauly D" Delvecchio and Mike "The Situation" Sorrentino.

Being held up by gold-painted muscular men is all in a day's work for Jane Lynch.

She said the show will also star a chorus of singing TV actors who will introduce the award categories. And "if any of our winners go long, they'll be gently singing them off," too, Lynch promised.

Inside the Nokia Theatre, the sweeping set was coming together. On one side of the stage, an enormous Emmy statue was showered in glittering charms. On the other side, a raised platform was surrounded by multiple screens.

"It feels important," Burnett said of the stage. "I like the colors — reds and golds, warm tones that make you feel invited and positive. Then, you drop in great musical moments and fun. That's the tone and pace. There's too much to fit in."

Does that mean the show will go over its three-hour running time? "Hey, has it ever not?"

Horoscope

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The new and the different provide you with a great deal to think about — and in the end you'll enjoy exercising a few unique options.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You've been taught to do things in a modest fashion, but you'll have the chance to show others all that you can really do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You can do much to assist others without sacrificing your own opportunities. Ultimately, you may be working with others very closely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You may think that you're doing things in the wrong order, but all that matters is that you get them done. Period.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You don't want to be aimless in your pursuits; focus on a clearly delineated goal, and do what you know how to do best.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You've been following a certain routine, but you'll realize that you've been holding yourself back.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) A few important decisions have to be made before the day is out, but you don't have to make them on your own. Solicit the opinions of others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone you look up to may actually look up to you — and when you realize this, you'll be able to overcome much that has been holding you back.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A fast pace isn't necessary — but if you want to move more quickly, there are ways of doing so without sacrificing your safety.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Pay attention to the things going on around the home that others might overlook. Certain tones and rhythms are all-important at this time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're likely to receive certain messages in an unusual way — but they are no less important simply because of how they are delivered.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A confrontation of sorts may be unavoidable, because you've been keeping your opinions and reactions to yourself for long enough.

DIFFICULT

Fill in each column, row and 3x3 box with the digits 1 through 9 without repeating any. The twist in Samurai Sudoku is that the digits that appear in the overlapping boxes must work for both puzzles. A piece of advice to get you started: Don't focus on completing one grid at a time. Keep the whole puzzle in mind as you go, because filling in a number in one grid could give you clues to another.
